Parenthetical References
The sources that you use should be cited in the text of your paper, either in a parentheses or as part of the text itself:
During the turbulent 1960s, science fiction programs on television reflected the public’s attitudes toward the older generation (Hodges 179).
Hodges discussed how, during the turbulent 1960s, science fiction programs on television reflected the public's attitudes toward the older generation (179).
Put the parentheses before a period, semicolon, or comma in order to avoid disrupting the flow of the sentence. If you are referring to the entire source in a general way, you may leave out the page numbers.
(Devine and Sherman 156-57)
(Kirk, Spock, and McCoy 1701)
(Vulcan Reflections 63-66) [Book with no author]
Longer titles should be shortened to the first word or two.
Use standard abbreviations for words in long names if they exist. Place commas between units instead of periods.
MLA prefers that you incorporate lengthy names into the text (without abbreviations) and place only the page numbers (if any) in parentheses.
